Dangerous Curve

The family of Shannon Simms has placed a marker at the site on Kiln-DeLisle Rd. near the Fenton Community where he was killed in a car accident on June 30. Simms' mother Diana Holden and brother David Simms on Tuesday asked the Hancock County Board of Supervisors to place guard rails at the site to prevent any other vehicles from going into the concrete culvert. Simms' marker is only one of three currently in place at the same curve. Police say about seven others have been killed in the same place in the past 10 years.

Boudin given until Aug. 6 to decide on subdivision

Joey Boudin has until Aug. 6 to decide whether he will go forward with his proposed subdivision off Harbor Drive.

But, if he opts to abandon the project, Hancock County supervisors might have to go to court to get him to fill in a four-acre, 25-foot pit he has dug on his property.

The latest confrontation between Boudin and neighbors who claim his plans for a subdivision was a scheme to enable him to mint dirt at the site for over a year, occurred Tuesday during a recessed meeting of the Hancock County Board of County water-sewer board offers $25 service discount

BY ED LEPOMA
Staff Writer

Beginning Oct. 1, Hancock County residents in unincorporated areas will get a $25 discount if they elect to pay their sewerage fee yearly.

The Hancock County Water and Sewer District voted unanimously Thursday to offer the discount after getting an opinion from the State Attorney's General's office, which ruled it was legal.

Some customers in Clermont Harbor had asked the board in previous meetings if they could get some kind of discount if they choose to pay the $35 monthly fee in a lump sum.

The district also voted to alter its policy on how it plans to bill the new 128-unit Waverly Apartments off state Hwy. 603 and Old Nicholson Road.

Wayne Pierce, who manages the property for the Jackson-based owners, Heritage Properties, complained to Commissioners, "We're paying about three times more here (for sewerage) than what we're paying on our other (apartment) prop-

Constable admits to domestic violence

BY GEOFF BELCHER

Danny Hamby, constable for the eastern district of Hancock County, resigned his post yesterday after pleading no-contest to two counts of simple assault in a domestic violence case in Hancock Justice Court.

Hamby entered the no-contest plea on Tuesday before Justice Court Judge John Chevis. Chevis sentenced the constable to six months in jail on each of the two counts, but suspended the sentence and offered two years' probation.

The case began May 4, when Hamby was jailed on a domestic violence-simple assault claim filed by a former girlfriend who alleged he had beaten her.

The woman's name is being withheld.

Hamby turned himself in at the Hancock County Justice Facility after the incident, but was quickly released on bond.

He was jailed again on May 18 after the same woman made further charges that he had both "stalked and harassed" her after the first arrest. He made bond again, but Justice Court Judge Tommy Carver

Supervisors adopt zoning appeals fee

BY ED LEPOMA
Staff Writer

After months of indecision, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors has settled on requiring a $250 fee to appeal zoning decisions affecting residences and a $500 fee for commercial appeals.

The vote in a recessed meeting Tuesday was 4-1, with board President Rocky Pullman casting the lone dissenting vote. Pullman has said he feels some of the county's poor and elderly can't afford to post the $250 fee.

The board's attorney, Gerald Gex, first proposed a $500 fee for all citizens aggrieved with a decision handed down by the county's Planning and Zoning Commission. Gex said past appeals have cost the county thousands of dollars in court and transcript costs, and attorney fees, and he felt the county should not have to bear the burden.

Last February, the planning commission held a public hearing on the request, and was confronted by a small, but vocal crowd of opponents. They adopted a recommendation to assess only a $100 fee on those appealing zoning decisions.

Their recommendation was rejected by the board last March, and the board, by the same 4-1 margin, asked the commission to reconsider the $500 fee.

The commission reluctantly concurred, and the board held its own public hearing on the proposal last April.

Supervisors backed off the $500 fee when they were confronted by the same small crowd of opponents, and they left the issue on the table, but began talking about other options.

When the commission approved the $500 last April, Willie Gavney, the county's chief zoning reminded supervisors, the requirement would become law within 90 days if they did not vote to reject or approve the charge.

It was District 1 Supervisor Jeep Ladner, who first mentioned the $250/$500 appeals scale, but supervisors left the issue on the table until last Tuesday's meeting.

Gavney reported the planning commission passed the suggested fees at their July 12 meeting, and asked the board to concur in their recommendations.

District 4 Supervisor Steve

Seymour made the motion to approve and Ladner made the second. They also got the support of District 3 Supervisor Lisa Coward and District 5 Supervisor Jay Cuevas.

Under the new regulations, those appealing will get all their money back if supervisors overrule the decision of the planning commission, but the fee will remain posted if a party appeals to the circuit court.

If the appeal proceedings cost less than the $250 or $500, the party will be refunded whatever remains.

The board handled a variety of issues during the recessed meeting. In other action:

• Clermont Harbor residents asked for several things.

• Clyde Ladner and Millie Usher, representing the Civic Association, asked supervisors to consider opening up that portion of Lake Street closed since 1947, and to install new signage.

The Board voted to have Road Supt. Roger Ladner look into the request.

Usher also complained a residents at 3rd and Forest Streets has been given two extensions to tow away junked cars and other debris on his lot, but most of it is still there.

Supervisors instructed the county attorney to notify the owner he has until Aug. 6 to clean up the property or the county will advertise for someone to clear the lot and assess the cost to him.

Usher also asked supervisors to look into the situation at Poor John's Campgrounds on South Beach Boulevard.

She claims the owner is renting out camp sites on the public beach or on the county right-of-way.

The Hancock County School District invited supervisors to a workshop scheduled July 18 at Hancock North Central Elementary School. They wanted to learn the Board's feeling on restoring the football field, at what once was the county's high school.

Supervisors, who are in the midst of looking at budget requests for the coming fiscal year, said they felt it would cost too much money to restore the playing field and to maintain it in the future.

They voted to send a resolution informing the School District they wanted to terminate a lease the Board had on the land.

Sand beach plans again going forward

BY ED LEPOMA
Staff Writer

On recommendation of consultants, Hancock County supervisors have agreed to scale back their beach renourishment plans.

After hearing a presentation from Bill Mitchell of Brown and Mitchell consultants, the board voted to authorize Mitchell to resubmit the plan to the state Department of Marine Resources and various other agencies that have to sign off on the project.

Mitchell told supervisors he met about a week ago with representatives of the Department of Marine Resources, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and other agencies which had some concerns about the project. Mitchell said county attorney Gerald Gex attended the meeting, along with the board's consultant, Jenell Tompkins.

He said Gex had old pictures to convince representatives that a beach once existed in the area, and that should resolve concerns that the county wanted to create a new beach between Bayou Caddy and Sand Bayou. "It's a beach renourishment project," Mitchell said. "Not a new beach."

Mitchell said the county's original application said the beach would be pumped in as an effort to halt further erosion of Beach Boulevard.

He said he thought the application would look better in the eyes of officials if the main reason given for the project was that the beach would become an economic and recreational benefit for the county.

Plans now call for seeking a permit to hydraulically dredge 250,000 cubic yards of sand from an offshore burrow area to create 1.1 miles of white sand beach stretching from Bayou Caddy to Sand Bayou.

The average width of the proposed sand beach would be 200 feet. In addition, the county is requesting permission to construct two rock jetties 200 feet long on either side of the proposed sand beach. The construction of the beach and jetties will require the filling in of approximately 26.02 acres of open water bottoms.

The Clermont Harbor Civic Association had asked supervisors to extend the project area past Buccaneer State Park and the Gulfside Methodist Assembly to Dane Street in Waveland, but Mitchell said two surveys showed the presence of a rare sea grass in those areas.

The grass, classified as Ruppia maritime and called Widgon grass, was found near the foot of Lake Street in Clermont Harbor last January and in an area near the Gulfside Methodist Assembly last June, Mitchell said.

Last February, the permit process was halted until consultants could address concerns raised by the Corps, the National Marine Fisheries Services, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and the Fish and Wildlife Services.

In other business, supervisors followed Compton Engineers Recommendations on several other construction projects.

Consultant Bill Johnson said he felt bids opened July 2 on extending the Clermont Harbor Pier were "a little high." He recommended making some design changes and putting the project out to bid again in August.

Five contractors bid on the project. The apparent low bid of $224,000 was submitted by a New Orleans firm, but Johnson said it was over funds earmarked for extending the pier from its present 50 feet to 200 feet.

On Johnson's recommendations, supervisors accepted the low bid of $12,410 submitted by Williams Paving of Gulfport to overlay the walking track in front of Hancock Medical Center with asphalt. They also voted to award a contract for $29,960 to Kan-Duit Construction of Picayune to make improvements to the county tax assessor's office that will make it handicapped-accessible, and in compliance with requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Kan-Duit was also awarded a $17,875 contract to install a guard rail on Beach Boulevard between Washington Street and Sycamore Street.

The Board rejected all bids submitted on the mechanical maintenance of county buildings, and voted to put the contract out to bid again.

Cuevas' Quotes

by Ellis C. Cuevas
Publisher Emeritus

It is always good to take off a few days and get out of town and see what is going on in other parts of the country.

Jane and I were on a five-day Hancock Bank Classic Club Mystery Trip Thursday through Monday and had a great time.

The looks and comments one receives when telling others one is going on a five-day trip and not knowing the destination is very interesting at times. The mystery of not knowing where one is going really makes a trip very interesting. This was the fifth one for Jane and me, and it seems we enjoy them more and more.

What really makes the trip interesting, too, is that many of those going have done so before, so we are not strangers to each other.

Our group, led by Peggy Newman and Sue Monk of Hancock Bank's Classic Club, included folks from Baton Rouge to Pascagoula.

Included from Hancock County were Alice Masson, Irene Scaife and Dot Parr.

Most of our journey was in Alabama with the exception of Lynchburg, Tenn., where we visited the Jack Daniels Distillery.

I guess it is really a small world, as I spied a young girl in a Bay St. Louis Fast Pitch T-shirt in the city of Lynchburg - Rebekah Kennedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Kennedy of Bay St. Louis. It so happened that Basil and I had attended a chamber meeting a few days before I met his daughter.

She was with a large group of girls from Camp Point Clear, Winchester, Tenn., on a day's outing. As many of you know, I live only a football field in distance from the McDonald Ball Field where Rebekah plays fast pitch softball. The ice cream shop appeared to be the most popular spot for the young girls.

Our mystery trip had lots of highlights, which also included a Looney's Tavern Productions of The Sound of Music, presented by the Northwest-Shoals Community College outside of Cullman, Alabama; (the theater is one of the oldest in this country), the Historic Huntsville Depot, built in the early 1800's; Huntsville's Space Center; the Burritt on the Mountain Renaissance Theatre for the play TimePeace; Scottsboro's Unclaimed Baggage Center; and lots of other places in between, including the Talladega Superspeedway.

Talladega, which has two super races a year has a tremendous display of racing vehicles going back to the early 1900's and a Hall of Fame.

We were privileged to travel the 2.66-plus-mile race course on our bus, which is something not too many folks have done. One grandstand is over one mile in distance, and the banks of the race track are four stories high. I have seen several races on television and never realized just how high the banks of the track really were.

It was great to get away, and I am looking forward to my next venture.

Friday will be Hancock Medical Center Foundation's first Scrub Scramble at the Pass Christian Isles Golf Course with a shotgun start at 8 a.m.

On Wednesday I spoke to Janet McQueen, HMC marketing director, and she said there are still a few openings for golfers, and if someone is interested to give a call at 467-8790 this morning.

There is an entry fee of $70 per person, and it includes a golf shirt, fees, cart and lunch. First place will receive $500 in certificates to the Pro Shop. Prizes will be awarded for Closest to the Pin, Hole in One, Longest Drive, and more.

I do not play golf myself, but I am scheduled to be there for the fun, and I hope to see you, too.

Do not forget the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Business After Hours set for 5 to 7 this evening at Sundance Subdivision, Sears Avenue, Waveland.

The sponsors are Julie Rosson, Home Priority, and Keith Johnson with food provided by Neil Favre's Southern Delights of Bay St. Louis.

There will be some very good food and a good time to meet old

Contingent expense fund keeps ballooning

It wasn't all bad that Gov. Ronnie Musgrove had called a one-day special session of the Legislature on July 17, just at the time when the the SLC meeting opens up a dirty little secret around state government.

To be exact: how much appropriations to the contingent expense funds of the two houses of the Legislature have ballooned in recent years, while many services that benefit the general public have been put on skimpy rations.

Remember, the contingent fund is where lawmakers get the money to send them on trips out of the state such as the Southern Legislature Conference. Roughly, it will cost $1,500 each to send legislators on the SLC junket.

Nineteen House members are going. There's some justification since House Speaker Tim Ford will be honored as outgoing chair of the SLC.

But 21 - yes, twenty-one - senators are Savannah-bound. Five more and you would have a majority of the Mississippi Senate riding around in the Old South carriages in Savannah.

They could hold a mini-special session while there and we could get a two-fer out of it. Mississippi, it should be pointed out, is the poorest state among those at the SLC.

Just a few years ago only a handful of lawmakers who were members of the committees on Interstate Cooperation would go to such conferences. That's like seven in the House and five in the Senate.

How come poor lil' old Mississippi is now sending a thundering herd to break bread and imbibe with fellow Southern lawmakers? I'll concede that along with the entertainment, some serious meetings are held to talk about common state problems.

So, with a contingent of 39 Mississippi lawmakers at the Savannah conference, our boys ought to bring back so much legislative wisdom that the Mississippi Legislature will be transformed from an otherwise intellectual wasteland into a model of state problem-solving.

To show you what a big chunk of money is now being poured into the contingent expense funds of the two houses of the Legislature, for the fiscal year that ended July 1, $7.5 million was appropriated. This year, the figure is $7.7 million.

Compare that to FY 1992: Then, the total appropriation to the contingent expense funds of both chambers amounted to $4.7 million. That's a $3 million jump - a 64 percent increase in 10 years! Anybody else get that kind of increase? I don't know of one.

The SLC is like Mecca for legislative lobbyists who ordinarily have to prowling the corridors of state capitols in order to button-hole state lawmakers. At the conference, they have dozens of state legislators all rounded up in one place, and none of their constituents are around.

Each May, the State Auditor issues a full statement of all Legislators Conference was meeting in Savannah, Georgia.

He could have saved the state money if he hadn't caved in and postponed the session to the following week.

Much ado was made - especially by Lt. Gov. Amy Tuck - that a one-day special session would cost the state $35,000.

Actually, taxpayers will pick up the tab for a lot more than that to send almost 40 legislators to sop up the beauty (and maybe some other things) of old Savannah for at least two or three days, hob-nobbing with like types from around Dixie.

Letters to the Editor

It's hard finding work in Hancock County

Dear Editor:

I just wanted to express how I feel about the employment code of ethics in Hancock County.

For the last six months I have mailed out more than 75 resumes in this area - by looking through the help wanted section of your paper.

I've also gone to all the Hancock County offices to submit applications and leave a resume, including all the local grocery stores, hospital, etc., a funeral home, and a salvage store.

No one but one even acknowledged I had ever submitted a resume.

I now am employed by an ENT doctor as a collector of insurance, plus schedule surgery for our patients and get all the consents and charts ready for surgery.

Now, this job came to me because they knew of my experience in the medical field and clerical.

I now have to drive to Pascagoula, 73 miles from my home to the office one way.

Either I drive that every day or I'm forced to stay away from my home and husband five days a week. I am a homebody, not a traveler.

Now that I have explained my situation you'll understand that the actions I will take from here on out will only justify what I call "pay back."

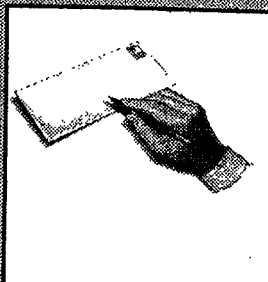

The money I earn will be spent in Jackson County, and if it comes down to it, my husband and I will be forced to move in that direction also. My husband is a life-long resident of Hancock County, and I've lived here since 1977.

For all the officials who asked for my help and my husband's during their time of need for a VOTE: Don't bother knocking on our door. I helped in the People of Hancock County: Make your government more responsible

To the Editor:
A story: I'm beginning to see where the supervisors are coming from.

"Oh, we made a big mistake! Don't worry, the people will be in to put down their $250 to pay for the appeal. We can rule against them, and they can pay for the paper work."

End of story.
Do you still trust them after all this time?

Supervisors should be put under bond instead of a non-responsible clause in their contract. They are responsible for nothing, so they can run all over the people at will.

People of Mississippi, stop the waste of your hard-earned money! The clause that says they're (not responsible) for what they do should be struck completely from the record.

This way people who truly want to help their fellow man can get elected to office for all

Panel of federal scientists links Agent Orange to leukemia

A federal panel of scientists has linked Agent Orange to a rare form of leukemia in the children of Vietnam War veterans. During the war, U.S. troops sprayed the chemical herbicide defoliant, which contains cancer-causing dioxin.

"Limited suggestive" evidence supports a connection between Vietnam War veterans' exposure to Agent Orange and acute myelogenous leukemia (AML) in some veterans' children, according to the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences.

The finding clears the way for the government to begin the process required to start paying for the care of children of veterans with the disease.

AML is rare, according to IOM, accounting for 8 percent of all childhood cancers and striking one child in 100,000. The disease affects 600 to 700 children per year in the United States.

The White House has already instructed VA Secretary Anthony J. Principi to ask Congress for legislation authorizing payments to affected families, according to the White House Press Office.

Payments may come too late for many families. AML is fatal in at least 60 percent of the cases, and few children affected by the disease are still alive to receive benefits, according to IOM. VA is likely to pay only for AML cases occurring after a decision to compensate for the illness is made, according to Mark Brown, director of VA's Environmental Agents Service.

While pleased by quick action to implement benefits, the American Legion supports VA compensation for the cost of care from onset of the disease to the death of veterans' children, said Steven Smithson, the Legion's assistant director of Veterans Affairs and Rehabilitation.

money expended by the Legislature during legislative sessions within the past 11 months. Included is an itemization of how much each lawmaker drew, including his or her base salary of $10,500, the $1500 per month allowance between sessions, their per diem (now about $80) for each day they attend sessions, as well as mileage and expenses reimbursed to them for travel within the state or to conventions or legislatively-related meetings out-of-state.

All in all, when you hear legislators making excuses to teachers and state employees for not giving them raises by citing they haven't raised their own $10,500 salary in some years, that's hogwash.

Add up everything each legislator drew from the contingent fund for various reasons last year and it will be a heckuva lot more than their base pay. Many draw $30,000 plus. Not a whole lot, you might say, but remember, this is a part-time job. Better yet, because of their rigging of the state retirement laws in recent years, they have fixed it where they get credit for everything they draw, other than mileage, toward their retirement.

Nobody else in state government gets to do that, with one notable exception which has just very recently occurred involving the retired former chief justice of the Supreme Court.

The ex-chief justice, Armis Hawkins, of Houston, had sued the Public Employees Retirement System to retroactively count his per diem, his living expenses in Jackson and mileage back-and-forth during his time on the court in calculating his retirement benefits.

So sizzling was the case that all sitting Supreme Court justices recused themselves and created a special panel of non-judges to make a recommendation in Hawkins' case. No surprise, the panel came down on Hawkins' side. And now, PERS has to shell out $40,000 in cash to Hawkins right now, plus hike his retirement pay $600 a month. This, many fear, may open the door for thousands of other state employees to retroactively get retirement credit for their expenses or per diem, and sweeten their retirement pay substantially.

Some say this could literally "break the bank" at the retirement system.

Of course, legislators had already given themselves a similar perk long before Hawkins got the idea.

All of the above is to give you citizens out there better insight into who and how some public servants are dipping into your pocket, and doing it legally.

This is just another one of those very busy weeks, as on Friday from 6 p.m. until 6 a.m. Saturday, the American Cancer Society's Annual Relay for Life will be held at the J.D. McCullough Stadium, (that is where the Bay High Tigers play football off Dunbar Avenue in Bay St. Louis).

It will be a night of many events, including a reception for cancer survivors and their families from 6 to 7 p.m.; a special luminary ceremony at 10 p.m.; and team members camping out and taking turns walking, running, or strolling around the track throughout the night.

Hopefully there will be many folks who come out and visit the Relay for Life and participate, or just come out and give their support by just being there.

last election, and only asked for one small favor, a job.

As for the Human Resources Department, when I needed the help, I got very little. Your office is a joke and a bunch of nosey people who only help the ones they want.

Yes, I was helped, but it took forever to get it, and then when I did, I was having to fill out on a weekly bases at least three correspondences wanting additional information.

So I closed my case on two different occasions. Now I'm told I have to pay that back.

I just want to thank a county which I used to consider home for all your help in our time of need.

ly turned back up Crane Creek Rd., Blaize-Watson said.

"While on the scene I was in my patrol car when I heard a loud muffler coming down Crane Creek Rd.," Ladner said in his report. "I then looked in my rearview mirror and saw a motorcycle passing a maroon car. At the time the motorcycle was passing the car, a Dodge truck pulling a trailer with a tractor was coming west on Crane Creek Rd. At that point, the motorcycle had nowhere to go.

"The motorcycle appeared to try and swerve to miss the truck and the truck slammed on its brakes to avoid the motorcycle when the motorcycle struck the truck head on ... (in) the passenger-side front corner."

"The bike went about 177 feet before it stopped," according to Deputy Ray Billeaud's report. "The body landed about 15 feet short of the bike and about 20 feet short of the bike and 20 feet north of the bike. The bike was going at a very high rate of speed."

Billeaud said the driver of the maroon car left the scene. The tractor that the Dodge truck was hauling was thrown off of the trailer.

The name of the truck driver has not yet been released.

The accident is still under investigation by officers of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

SOCIETY

THE AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY®

RELAY FOR LIFE

Friday, July 20, 2001 at J. D. McCullough Stadium (Tiger Stadium)

Relay for Life is the American Cancer Society's national signature event where participants walk, run, stroll, and shuffle around a track during the community event. The festivities of the overnight event celebrate survivorship, raise money and raise awareness in the fight against cancer.

The dollars raised at Relay For Life will allow the American Cancer Society to continue funding cancer research, develop new prevention and detection programs and continue providing its expansive patient support programs.

THE FOLLOWING EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS & SERVICES ARE OFFERED IN SOUTH MISSISSIPPI:

Tell A Friend - A program designed to encourage women age 40 or older to have annual mammograms.

Local Tobacco Advocacy - The American Cancer Society continues its work to strengthen and enforce tobacco ordinances.

Reach To Recovery - This is a volunteer visitation program that matches breast cancer survivors with anyone who has concerns about breast cancer. Whether the person has been diagnosed with breast cancer, undergoing surgery or found a suspicious lump, a Reach To Recovery volunteer listens to the person's concerns, recommends resources and offers emotional support. Between August of 1998 and January of 2001 over 200 women in Hancock, Harrison, Pearl River and Stone counties had a Reach To Recovery visit.

Look Good Feel Better - This program is designed to help women, undergoing cancer treatment, learn to cope with the appearance related side effects of treatment. It is designed to help them regain a sense of self-confidence and control over their lives.

"Relay For Life is not just about raising money, it's about raising awareness and bringing attention to this horrible disease," said Kerry Clark from the American Cancer Society. "Many of the participants are cancer survivors themselves and they are living proof of the strides we have made in the fight against cancer."

THE FOLLOWING PATIENT SUPPORT PROGRAMS ARE OFFERED IN SOUTH MISSISSIPPI:

National Cancer Information Center: Callers from Hancock, Harrison, Pearl River and Stone Counties can reach a trained Cancer Information Specialist 24-Hours a Day, 7-Days a week, 365 Days a year through the American Cancer Society's toll-free Cancer Information Line, 1-800-ACS-2345.

Support Groups: These groups help patients and their family members with the physical and emotional stress of coping with a cancer diagnosis and treatment.

I Can Cope: Facing cancer can be one of the most significant challenges a person encounters. I Can Cope, helps people meet this challenge by clarifying facts and myths through a series of educational classes.

"Unique You" Boutique: The American Cancer Society offers, free of charge, a selection of wigs, hats, scarves, breast prosthesis and bras to cancer patients in the Hancock, Harrison, Pearl River and Stone Counties.

Hope Lodge: It's tough enough to fight cancer without fighting a financial battle as well. Thanks to the American Cancer Society's Hope Lodge in New Orleans, a solution is on the way. Hope Lodge will offer a temporary home, as well as a supportive environment to patients and their families receiving cancer treatment in the New Orleans area. The American Cancer Society's Hope Lodge is projected to open in December of 2003.

An Invitation to Cancer Survivors & Their Families

We are honoring cancer survivors and their families at a very special ceremony as part of the American Cancer Society's Relay For Life in Bay St. Louis/Waveland. The ceremony salutes all cancer survivors at 7:00 p.m. with survivors walking the opening victory lap symbolizing the united fight against cancer. Registration will begin at 6:00 p.m. at the Relay For Life survivor registration area. Survivors and their families are invited to join us for a celebration (refreshments included) in the Survivors' Tent prior to and following the victory lap.

Eileen's Dreams
 On Butterfly Wings

She had dreams as we all do; they were in vivid colors of orange, yellow and blue.

She's no longer here to see them through, but family and friends will make sure they do.

Her dreams were but a chosen few in a cocoon with a golden hue.

The dreams were never wishes on a star, but prayers on wings that have traveled from near to far.

The wings are light, but steadfast and strong, like the beautiful notes in her favorite song.

They could easily fit on an angel's wing, but Eileen wanted her dreams on butterfly wings.

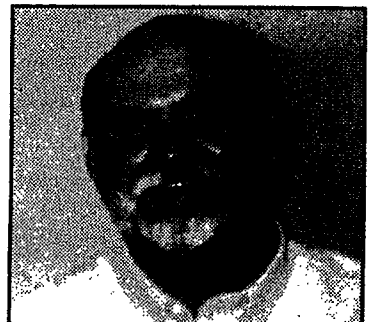

She has dreams as we all do; they are flying colors of orange, yellow and blue.

When one enters your heart, he becomes a part of you and can never leave, only journey away temporarily.

Thank you Jesus for his gentle journey home.

on into the cement culvert there.

She told supervisors there are three crosses there, signifying where others have died.

"If you've never lost a child, you don't know what you go through," Holden said.

She was supported by David Simms, Shannon's brother, and another unidentified woman, who told supervisors her daughter died in a crash at the same site about 10 years ago.

Pullman told them the board would get county engineer Geoff Clemens to look into the situation, since the Kiln-DeLisle Road is on the state-aid road list to see if it can meet qualify for funding needed to install the guard rail. He told Holden it will take some time before the board decides anything.

Holden invited each of the supervisors to go out to the curve and see the situation for themselves.

"It's not going to stop here," she said. She said she will begin collecting signatures on a petition if supervisors don't act on her request.

revoked it, ordering him held until a June 20 trial. That trial was postponed when a witness for the alleged victim failed to appear in court, and Hamby was again released on bail.

As part of his plea agreement, neither Hamby nor anyone acting for him may have any contact with the alleged victim or family. He must also attend anger management counseling.

Hamby was elected to the constable's position in 1999. He had also served as a part-time Hancock County deputy until shortly after the May 4 arrest, when he resigned that post.

No acting constable has yet been appointed to replace Hamby. Hancock County supervisors said Tuesday that there may still be time to get the office on the ballot for the November 2001 election.

Vice Chairman Herman Johnson said the figures were arrived at during several different workshop meetings with the contractor, employed by Heritage Properties.

Under an agreed-upon plan, the District is sending one monthly bill to Heritage Properties for $4,400 for the 128 units.

Pierce said that fee should be reduced because only 56 of the units are now completed, and only 12 are rented. He said it would be a couple of months before the other 72 apartments are finished, and a certificate of occupancy is issued.

Johnson said, "I don't think we should charge the man for something that's not done." He made the motion to charge the developer for only the 56 now available for rent, with the stipulation that the developer notify the District each time a new building goes on line and the apartments are available to be leased.

The development includes one, two and three-bedroom apartments in a cluster of 24 buildings.

Pierce also asked whether Heritage Properties could post a surety bond for the deposit fee required by the district. He said other Sewer and Water Districts allow this practice at other properties Heritage owns and manages.

J.P. Compretta, the district's attorney, said he would have to research the question, and he would get back to Pierce with an answer.

Heritage properties sewered its own development and brought connections to the point where it met up with the county sewerage collection system. The developers were charged a deposit and tap fee of $19,480, but $12,840 of that was for the deposit.

The district handled a mixed bag of issues in a meeting that stretched past three hours.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors sent a resolution asking the District to respond to charges recently made by Chris Salisbury, a Shoreline Park residents, who has complained to supervisors, and to state and federal agencies about the sewerage and water systems.

District Administrator Eddie Renz explained Salisbury has been invited many times to address the District, but has never come to any of the monthly meetings.

He said, "I don't think we need to respond...None of his claims warrant a response."

Renz also confirmed Salisbury has not paid his sewerage bill since last January.

Johnson told Renz it was the District's policy to pull the grinder off the premises whenever any customer is 60 days or more behind in his payments.

He instructed Renz to "pull it," unless he pays up.

Commissioners took under an advisement a memorandum from the Southern Regional Wastewater District regarding the proposed extension of the collection system into Pearlinton.

In order to proceed, the two cities and the county, are being asked to spend between $2 million and $3.5 million of the proposed initial cost to run the sewerage transmission line from Pearlinton to the treatment plant in Waveland. The line would also tie in the Port Bienville Industrial Park and the Ansley Community into the system.

Gulf of Mexico Deputy Director Brian Griffith has explained at previous meetings that Pearlinton needs the memorandum of understanding in order to land the federal grants and loans.

Commissioner Sid Davis, who attends the regional meeting as the district's representative, said mayors of Bay St. Louis and Waveland also had reservations about the proposal. The sticking point seems to be that in the event Pearlinton's customer base can't support the payback of the loans it receives, customers in the county and two cities might have to come up with another $2 monthly, in addition to the $35 monthly they are already paying.

Commissioners will request clarification on the proposal.

Three of five commissioners voted to deny a request from Robert Ulmer to reduce his sewerage bill.

Ulmer told commissioners he moved to Hattiesburg last November, and his house has been on the market. He said there is no power to the house, "and no sewerage has gone through my grinder," so he didn't think he should be charged the $35 monthly.

Commissioner Bob Fricke motioned to forgive the arrears retroactive to the date when Ulmer had the electricity turned off. However, Johnson objected, saying, "I'm worried about setting a precedent here."

Fricke said each request should be weighed individually, and in Ulmer's case, he thought it was justified. Commissioner Beanie Zoerner seconded Fricke's motion, but it died by a

2-3 vote. Johnson was supported by Commissioner Davis, Chairman Al Smith.

Boudin

Boudin was represented by attorney Don Rafferty and was requesting additional time to put in paved streets and sewerage connections to his planned 54-lot development.

On June 19, 2000, supervisors approved preliminary plans for his subdivision, but gave him one year to make the street and sewerage improvements. The board also placed restrictions on the hours of hid dirt mining operations.

When that deadline passed, the county hired attorney Ronnie Artigues, who got a court injunction four weeks ago that virtually shut down Boudin's mining activity on the site. Boudin wasn't listed on the board's official agenda, but he and Rafferty showed up after the lunch break. Opposing neighbors, represented by attorney Reilly Morse, were also in the audience.

Rafferty contended Boudin "put in a lot of work there," but needed more time to put in the streets and sewerage.

Morse argued Boudin has displayed "bad faith on his part that demonstrates he never intended to do anything except mine dirt."

"He has been playing this board as a fool for a year,"

Morse charged.

Supervisor Steve Seymour, whose District 4 includes the Harbor Drive site off U.S. Hwy.90, asked, "The people in the neighborhood, what do they want?"

Morse said, "They don't want a mining operation in this area. They want you all to tell Boudin to fill in the hole." He reminded supervisors that neighbors have also filed a Circuit Court suit against Boudin.

Seymour seemed surprised when board President Rocky Pullman offered a compromise that would give Boudin 90 more days to complete the improvements. The board instructed Artigues to read stipulations, which would grant Boudin an extension to complete the first phase improvements to the subdivision.

Boudin would be given a 90-day extension. He would be required to post a $75,000 performance bond, which he would forfeit if the streets and sewerage work is not completed in time. He must slope the dirt pit and secure it with a fence.

Rafferty argued the pit was already fenced, and didn't require a slope. He complained the amount of the performance bond was "too high."

Rafferty also expressed doubt the board has the authority to force Boudin to fill in the pit.

Pullman warned, "If you haven't done the work in 90 days, I'll do everything I can to put you out of business."

He added, "If you can't go forward, then it's over with."

Rafferty said Boudin needed more time to decide whether he wants to go forward.

Boudin told supervisors he might abandon the project, and put trailers on the site. Supervisors tabled approving the time exemption until they meet again Aug. 6.

a huge success

14th annual Ladner's Gulf Coast School of Basketball scheduled

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

Staff Writer

Session II of the Ladner's Gulf Coast School of Basketball will be held during the traditional last week of July at St. Stanislaus High School. This year the camp will run daily from July 23-28 from 5:30pm till 8:30pm. The second session is open to boys in grades 1 through 12 and the cost is $60. Registration will start at 4:30 p.m. daily.

The directors of the camp are St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws head coach Jay Ladner and Hancock Hawks head coach Michael Ladner.

Jay Ladner is entering his 11th season at the helm of the Rocks basketball program. Michael Ladner is entering his fifth season at the helm of the Hancock Hawks program following a stint as an assistant head coach with the University of Memphis Lady Tigers program.

The staff of the camp will include the SSC, Hancock, and Gulfport High coaching staffs, as well as, other top coaches from the Southeastern region.

Special guest speakers for the camp will include J. Larry Ladner, Roland Ladner, and Richard Williams. Larry Ladner, the father of Jay Ladner, is a former Picayune Memorial High School head coach and instructor at the University of Southern Mississippi in the Department of Athletic Administration and Coaching. Roland Ladner, the father of Michael Ladner, is Mississippi's all-time winningest prep basketball coach. He has made coaching stops at Harrison Central, Hancock North Central, Pearl River Central, and Phillips Junior College. Richard Williams is the former Mississippi State University head basketball coach. Williams led his team to the NCAA Final Four in 1996 before retiring two seasons later.

While the camp stresses fundamentals of the game, there is much more than that taught at the camp.

Jay Ladner commented, "While the purpose of the camp is to expose the young men to the fundamentals of the game, we stress God, Family, Athletics - in that order. The campers are taught life skills, values, and character. We try to teach them how to enjoy themselves and how to incorporate our motto of God, Family, Athletics into their daily lives."

For more information on either session please call 467-9057, extension 258, 452-2916, or 255-3857.

Under the guidance of one of the museum artists, children will work primarily in clay to make their own art creations.

In the Jambalaya Gallery, through the months of July and August, the Ohr O'Keefe Museum of Art will display a collection of shapes made of brick clay created by Coast artist Jeff Schmukl.

Schmukl said, "My work is a collection of shapes made of brick clay. I am interested in working with common, banal materials and the process necessary to bring them into a poetic space."

"Through color, shape, and positioning, the objects can function as metaphor as well as decorative objects. In this series, brick is transformed into cake, confections, and other sweet foods."

"Each element is fired up to 10 times, each time layering various glazes on another."

Sometimes I grind down into the glazed surface to reveal the history of the process. Although this is time consuming, and I have a high rate of failure, it is the only way I feel the work can be finished."

For more regarding the exhibit, contact the museum at 228-374-5547.

Museum hours are Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

"The Belles" Four Mississippi Women Exhibit Works of Art

The show will run through August 25. All are from Jackson.

Susan Ford has been blowing glass for 25 years and says it's a magical, romantic experience for her. "With each piece I blow there is a sense of wonder and excitement," says Ford.

Marcy Petrini also teaches weaving and hopes she can keep the craft alive by passing it on to others. Petrini says, "If it were to die (weaving), a part of our humanity would die with it."

Kit Davis makes beads with the process called flamework. Each bead is created over a torch from room temperature to 1700 degrees.

"The never ending possibilities for creation in the glass medium draw me in as a moth is drawn to the flame," says Davis.

Ann Baker lived on a desert in Southern Utah where she was heavily influenced by the dramatic earth formations outlined by space.

Baker says, "Both the desert and love of Asian art inspired the clean lines, the emphasis of negative space, the shapes, design and all over feel and emotion of my pottery."

Majesty of Spain Education Program invites teachers to qualify for free trip to Spain

Mississippi teachers may still become eligible to receive a free trip to Spain, to be awarded to 10 teachers, who will be randomly selected at the conclusion of The Majesty of Spain Exhibition. The trip is being funded by the Feild Co-Operative Association, Inc.

To qualify for the contest, teachers must complete three requirements by September 3:

- 1) Attend a Majesty of Spain Teacher Training Session
- 2) use the Majesty of Spain educational materials as part of classroom curriculum and have their principal sign a letter verifying that they have done so, and
- 3) take a group of 20 or more students to The Majesty of Spain Exhibition in Jackson.

The letter should be sent to The Majesty of Spain Exhibition, P.O. Box 2447, Jackson, MS, 39225-2447. When all three conditions have been met, upon receipt of the letter, the teacher's name will be entered into the contest.

An additional teacher training session will be held Wednesday, August 8, from 9 to 11 a.m. in the International Hall at the Mississippi Arts Pavilion. For more information or to pre-register, call Page Goodrich at 601-960-9907.

The Majesty of Spain Exhibition has been designated the "2001 Top United States Event" by the American Bus Association (ABA). On March 31, Their Majesties King Juan Carlos I and Queen Sofia visited the exhibition.

Individual tickets for The Majesty of Spain Exhibition may be purchased by calling TicketMaster toll-free at 877-709-2639 and at TicketMaster outlets. All tickets are for a specific time and date. Advance tickets are recommended.
